Aluminum Paint to Improve Old Farms

Delay Deterioration By Proper Painting

One of the most common tell-tale signs of deterioration on the farm is blistered and peeling paint. Yet, paint does remain one of the quickest and most practical of "repair" materials and the best way of stopping deterioration.

The average farmer does not re-paint his service buildings often.

Paint adds to life of building.

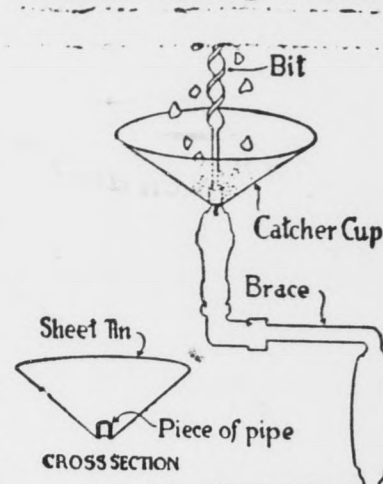

then every 10 years. Cheap white paints will not last that long.

Aluminum paint is recommended for agricultural uses because it can be applied satisfactorily to almost any kind of suitable surface. It serves equally well on steel, wood, brick, concrete, plaster, wallboard, galvanized iron, asphalt roofing and even canvas.

Aluminum paint is an effective temperature reducer. A coat on the roof of an uninsulated building will reduce the interior temperature of that building by as much as 10 to 14 degrees. The reduction is effective in a chicken coop, hog house, dairy barn, milk or egg building or the home. Because aluminum paint reflects approximately 70 per cent of the heat striking it, roof temperature as high as 140 degrees can be reduced to 85 or 100 degrees.

Because of its high moisture-proofing powers and its ability to withstand washing as well as constant exposure to steam, fume and other corrosive agencies, aluminum paint has long been widely applied in dairies and similar plants. It is also used to protect all kinds of farm equipment and machinery.

Cup on Brace Catches Borings from Overhead

When using a brace and bit to bore a hole in wood that is overhead, and prevent the borings from falling into the eyes, a funnel may be utilized. The bit extends through the funnel, giving it freedom, but holds the cup in place.

Postwar Machinery Track Tractors

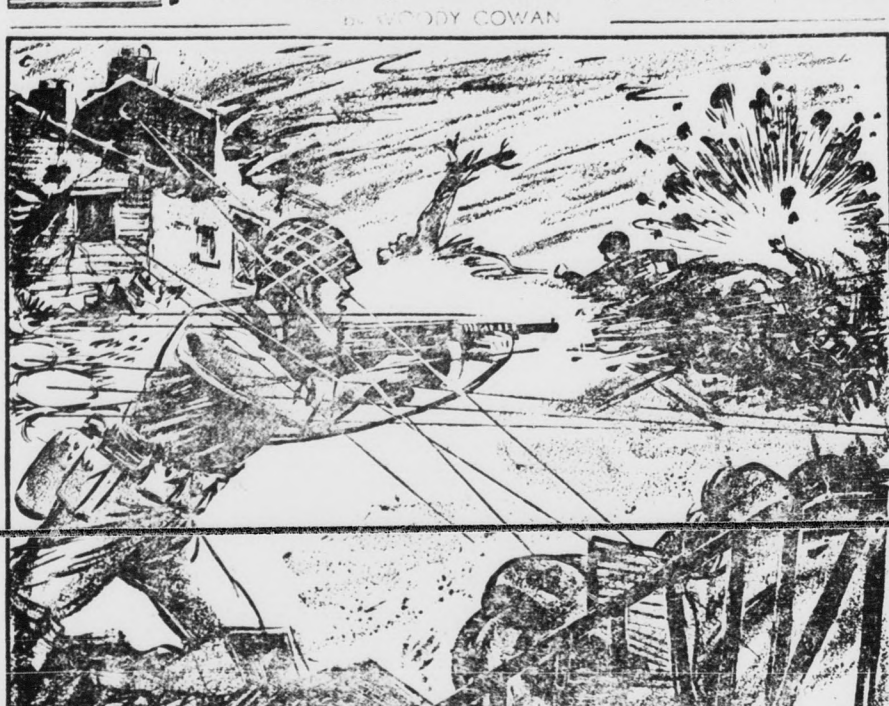

Postwar farm tractor, designed by B. F. Goodrich, combining the sleekness of a racing auto and the rugged track-laying ability of the famous military half-track. The self-track-laying tractor moves at high speed on highways, and are said to have a drawbar pull nearly twice as great as that of wheels and exert lighter pressure per unit of ground contact which reduces soil packing.

Saves Apples by Air

By applying the principle of the gas mask to protect apples in storage, apple growers may save thousands of dollars annually, according to research work conducted at Cornell University.

The conditioning prevents storage apples from developing a "scald" disease, which causes the fruit to become unsightly and to lose market value. One of the greatest problems of apple storage has been the formation of scald, which is a distressing

AMERICAN HEROES

SEENING his two squads pinned down by enemy machine-gun fire, Lt. Beryl R. Newman, Fargo, N. D., boldly advanced, wounding two with his Tommy gun and chasing two others into a house. When the latter two attempted to make a gun, he killed them. Then he kicked in the door of the house and forced eleven armed enemy gunners to surrender. He was awarded the Medal of Honor. Victory bond investments support men in all services who make this drive for final victory.

Radar, Guarded Allied Leaders

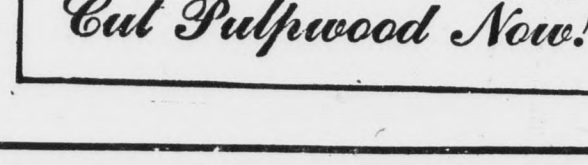

(United States Photo)

THE INVISIBLE ELECTRIC RAYS of that amazing "scientific war secret"—radar—can now be disclosed to have played a vital part in protecting the great conference of Allied leaders. This picture shows British Air Force Engineers atop the Great (or Chinese) Pyramid in Egypt with their radar equipment ready to detect any possible enemy air attack during the Cairo Conference, November 1943, between President Roosevelt, Premier Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The Khopren Pyramid is beyond. In the same way, the world's first chain of radar stations around the coasts of Britain was directly in operation protecting that country a full year before the outbreak of the European war. They enabled the gallant few R.A.F. pilots to win the Battle of Britain in the summer of 1940 and were the first operational demonstration of a whole range of 22 applications with infinite technical variations.

UNIVERSALLY POPULAR

The "Sunday School Lesson" published each week in this newspaper has been adopted by thousands of churches and Sunday schools throughout the United States as a regular part of their weekly work. It is a review and exposition of the international lesson for each week, prepared by Dean Harold L. Lundquist of the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago, a recognized leader in the nation's church work. Dean Lundquist has been active in teaching youthful groups for years, thereby acquiring an insight into the needs of these people for understandable explanations of Bible passages. In view of his accomplishments in church work, it is not surprising that Dean Lundquist's exposition of the weekly Sunday School lesson is being used in almost every community of the nation. As teacher or student you will find it extremely helpful.

"GAY GADGETS"

WHY DO YOU LOVE THAT VAN?

Now that the Van Johnson hysteria is sweeping the country like the Sinatra tidal wave, we want to know the ways and wherefores. When people asked us what you saw in Frankie to bring on the swoons and squeals, we could only shrug helplessly and say, "We, too, we've been the 1,000 teenagers who act as if 'Hi-Style Scouts' for Calling All Girls if they're swooning over Van and why. Now, just let somebody ask us about this new crush and we're ready with all the answers.

"He looks like the boy next door—just like a movie glamour boy. (Don't you wish you lived on that girl's block?)

"The way he takes a girl in his arms and kisses her." (Now we're getting somewhere.)

"His cute, openly voice." (Well, what's the matter with Mickey Mouse?)

"His divine build, his boyish smile, his red hair." (Three good reasons.)

"He's sweet and shy, when the occasion demands, he can be so-so masterful." (Did you sit through his last picture three times just waiting for these "occasions"?)

"He doesn't act as if he were acting." (Then what does M.G.M. pay him for, anyway?)

"Are you kidding? He's positively gorgeous." (That seems to sum up the whole situation.)
